Climax in Seventh Street Paving Movement Tonight.

TO HOLD MASS MEETING

Business Men Will Gather at Carroll Institute Hall to Outline Their Demands.

The movement for the repaving o

Seventh street northwest has become city-wide. While originally launched by the merchants and residents of that im portant business artery, it developed rapidly into a campaign participated in by every large and representative business and civic organization of Washington showing on their rolls many thousand showing on their rolls many thousands of public-spirited, tax-paying, property-owning citizens of the National Capital. Thus, Washington has taken it upon litelf to fight concertedly the cause of those whose health, nerves, and business suffers under the present diagraceful cobble-stone surface of Seventh street. The movement will come to a climax to-night when the campaigners will gather night when the campaigners will gathe at the Carroll Institute Hall, Tenth street at the Carroll Institute Hall, Tenth street, above New York avenue, at a mass meeting to be arranged by the Mid-City Citizens' Association, under whose auspices the campaign was started.

William F. Gude, president of the Chamber of Commerce: William H. Singleton, first vice president of the Board of Trade; D. A. Edwards, head of the Federation of Citizens' Association, and of the Lincoln Park Association, and A. J. Item Stricken Out.

The chief object of the meeting, and of the campaign in general, is to impress upon the members of the District House Committee the urgent necessity of plac-ing back upon the District appropriation bill the item for the repaying of Sev-enth street. This item was provided in enth street. This item was provided in the estimates submitted by the Commis-sioners to Congress, but was later stricken out by the committee. The en-thusiasm displayed by practically all Washingtonians and the earnestness and vigor with which they have gone about this matter, it is expected, will go a long way toward convincing the members of the House committee that they are morally compelled to give the people of the District what they so urgently need the District what they so urgently need

TWO ARE HURT IN FIRE.

"There cannot be found one man in Washington, lawmaker, official, or private citizen, who has an argument against repaving this street," said the last night.

Prouty letter threw a damper over the proceedings. At 2 o'clock the resolution was laid aside, and it will be taken up again today or Monday for further consideration.

During the debate over the resolution.

A petition urging the House Commit-tee on the District to arrange for the immediate resurfacing of Seventh street was signed by every merchant and resident of that thoroughfare as well as by numerous other business and professional men of Washington. It was forwarded to the House committee yesterday and reads as follows:

Has Many Signers.

"We, the undersigned residents on Seventh street northwest between New York avenue and Florida avenue, and merchants and property owners thereon, do strongly urge the immediate resur-facing of Seventh street northwest beween these points, owing to the present ong neglected and dilupidated condition of said street, endangering life and health, and unjustly impairing the property values and business conditions on this, one of the oldest of Washington's business streets."

A public hearing on street traffic regulations will be held before the District Commissioners next Tuesday morning in the beard room in the District Building, according to announcement made yesterday. The changes recommended in the existing regulations are embodied in a schedule drafted by the street traffic committee of the Board of Trade and submitted to the Commissioners.

This committee, with Le Roy Mark as chairman, worked in conjunction with William P. Eno. one of the foremost traffic experts in the world, who has figured prominently in the drafting of regulations for many large cities, including Paris and New York. Mr. Eno and Mr. Mark will be present at the hearing.

himself that the assets of the company Section in Dispute.

Expenses and salaries paid officers are to be included in the annual reports of financial institutions affected by the act, and if either the superintendent of surance of the Comptroller of the Cur-rency shall decide that the company is not prudently managed he may require such changes in the administrative methods as he deem best. Appeal from such decisions lies to the District Commis-sioners and thence to the courts. Section 10, the disputed section, and upon which Mr. Prouty insisted, reads as

"Section 10. That no officer or directo of any such insurance company shall be financially interested in any company, firm or corporation holding or having a general underwriting contract or agency with said insurance company, and any person now holding such dual relation shall sever his connection either with the underwriting agency or said insurance company within ninety days from the names of this act."

passage of this act.

If the compromise measure is framed in such a way as not to conflict with the Federal reserve act, its effect upon banking institutions in the District probably will be slight, as most of the trust companies here will come in under the new Federal organization anyhow. Thus rederal organisation anyhow. Thus trust companies would be exempt from the operations of the provision which declares them in competition with real estate firms, unless some effort is made to reconcile the local measure with the requirements of the Federal reserve act.

Social Organizations, It Is Announced, Will Have to Pay.

MUCH SURPRISE CAUSED

Under Former Act, Returns, from Corporations "Not Organized for Profit" Were Not Required.

That the income tax law is an almost inexhaustible mine of surprises was demonstrated afresh yesterday when it was discovered that clubs such as the Commercial. Metropolitan, University, Cosmos, Press, and Army and Navy were subject to the tax, provided they are incorporated. It is supposed that Congress did not intend that such organizations should come within the law, but failed to exempt them through an oversight, and exempt them through an oversight, and the result is that they are taxable, ac-cording to an official determination by Internal Revenue Commissioner W. H.

A lawyer who is a member of several clubs noticed that the income tax law, in re-enacting, with some modifications, the older corporation excise tax law, had been differently phrased and that there seemed to be no specific provision as to lubs of this sort.

Formerly Were Exempt. In the former law returns were re quired of all corporations except those "not organized for profit," which exempted social clubs. In the income tax law the phrase "not organized for profit" was dropped out, and in its stead was a clause stating specifically the kind of organizations that were exempt from th

These included labor, agricultural, horticultural organisations: mutual sav-ings banks, fraternal beneficiary socie-ties, orders or associations operating un-der the lodge system, demestic building and loan associations, cemetery com-panies operated for the mutual benefit of their members, religious, charitable, scientific, or educational societies; busi-ness leagues, chambers of commerce, boards of trade, and "civic leagues for the promotion of social welfare."

The only language even remotely suggesting a social club was that concerning "social welfare." and the view taken by the lawyer was that this must mean "uplift" societies for the social welfare of others. He knew that under the older law clubs had been exempt and none of those he belonged to had contempated for a moment the necessity of making returns of its income and operating ex-

Many Have No Profits

Many Have No Profits.

Many clubs have no "profits" or net income at the end of the year and it is not uncommon for them to be run at a loss, but the income tax law, as affecting corporations, is different from that affecting individuals, in that it requires a return from every corporation, without any $3,000 exemption and even if it has a net loss for the year. Under the old law corporations were exempt from taxation on $5,000 of their profits, but nevertheless all had to file returns. Under the income tax law there is no exemption for corporations and, of course, no exemption from making returns. no exemption from making returns.

The lawyer in order to clear up all doubts, wrote to the Internal Revenue Commissioner and yesterday he received a reply, saying that, as clubs were not among those specifically exempted, they

All returns under the law must be file on or before March 1, so that the officers and bookkeepers of social clubs, thus suddenly awakened to a requirement they get to work at once on the comp of their receipts and expenditures
